KEY POINTS

An active plant cell

Developed to deliver the highest amount of original active molecules

A high tech natural ingredient

Created to preserve and improve the identity and the benefits of a natural product

A general anti-aging action

Increases the synthesis of dermis fibers and limits free radicals to reduce general damages visible to skin

During the aging process, the synthesis of various macromolecules formed by fibroblasts decreases, which changes the extracellular matrix (ECM) and reduces its anti-aging properties.

In vitro test results

In the dermis, the ECM is a well-controlled dynamic structure that provides essential biochemical and biomechanical signals necessary for tissue morphogenesis, differentiation, and homeostasis. The ECM is composed of water, polysaccharides, and proteins. The ECM generates the biochemical and mechanical properties of the skin, such as skin elasticity and strength.

ASIAN ORCHID – CHINESE GROUND ORCHID

Provides the highest amount of initially active molecules.

Anti-aging effect
